_this is what we do

Since 1997, ShowPro has provided an evolving array of technical support to the event industry by mobilizing the best talent and technology in lighting, audio, video, staging and production management. ShowPro brings world-class production to events, with massive focus on client needs including quick response and clear communication. Founder David Smith has been an innovative senior executive for almost 40 years, working with the first moving light systems in the 80s, developing a pre-social-media touring media bus, was an originator in the large format building projection business, and continues to leverage his extensive experience to form important partnerships with producers and agencies and venues across the country.

A wide-angle shot of a grand event space, likely for the Oscars. A long, illuminated red carpet runs down the center. On either side of the carpet are large, black, tufted leather chairs with a gold sequined pillow and a large arrangement of red roses on top. The background features a stage area with a large screen displaying the word "OSCAR.S." in white, flanked by vertical light columns and a shimmering gold wall. The ceiling is dark with spotlights, and the overall atmosphere is elegant and celebratory.

The image shows a stage set for the Nickelodeon Licensing Show. The background is a large blue screen with the event's name in orange and white text. The stage is decorated with various geometric shapes and panels, some of which are illuminated with a bright cyan light. In the foreground, there are several rows of white chairs with red cushions, arranged in a semi-circle facing the stage. The overall atmosphere is modern and vibrant.
